A Story of Jenny Lind. Richmond Dispatch. AN INCIDENT OF HER LIFE—HOW SHE WON THE PRIENDSHIP OF A RIVAL.

In 1847 Guila Grisi and Jenny Lind were singing in London, but at different places. Each star struggled to outsbine the other, and those who one evening went into ecstacies over Grisi's "Norma" were the next evening enraptured with Lind's "Casta Diva." Such was the rivalry that it was not expected that they would sing together in a public concert. But Queen Victoria, thinking it a shame that two singers so eminent should be separated by a petty jealousy, requested both to appear at a court concert. Of course they complied with the request. The Queen cordially dle Atlantic States, fair weather, winds welcomed them together for the first time. mostly northerly, higher barometer, stabegin.

As Jenny Lind was the younger of the two, it had been arranged that she should sing first. With perfect confidence in her powers she stepped forward and began. And he mentions the significant fact that "in 1860 all the States that attempted to form the Confederacy paid less than two years in Greenbrier and other counties $10,000,000 to agricultural labor. During the past year the State of Georgia alone paid over $30,000,000 to the free labor which tilled her fields, and the circulation of this vast sum at home creates country stores, builds villages, improves towns, and makes active the mechanical and all other occupations which depend for support upon the working class in any community." change which this implies from the conditions under the old system, when the proceeds of slave labor were expended upon wasteful plantations or contributed to the enrichment or the prodigality of the few, does not need to be enlarged upon. Neither does the equally encouraging fact that the colored people of the South are rapidly approaching a per capita ownership of land that is equalied by the laboring class of

Mr. J. P. Rogers's absence was excused. Mr. John S. Ellett, from the Committee on Inland Trade, to which committee was referred the complaints as to delays in delivery of goods shipped from this city to points in North and South Carolina, made a verbal report to the effect that Mr. Haas had investigated the cases referred to with diligence. He is of opinion that the reports have been exaggerated, and that the goods have been delivered more rapidly than is believed. In regard to the delays in the delivery on the Western North Cacocoanuts, &c., consigned to Messrs. Curtis rolina road, they have occurred from the fact that heretofore there have been only tri-weekly trains, but on the 15th there will be daily trains, and the trouble from that quarter removed. We offer for sale a limited amount of RICHMOND AND DANVILLE RAILROAD 6 PER CENT. GOLD RONDS due in 1915 at 104 and accrued hutterest. These bonds are secured by a consolidated mortgage on the Richmond and Danville and Piedmont railroads and the lease of the North Carolins mont railroads and the lease of the North Caronna railroad.

We can confidently recommend these bonds, as the annual report of the company for the year ending 30th September, 1880, showed that the company had reduced its debt over $450,000 during the two preceding years, besides adding largely to its rolling stock and machinery, and purchasing 6 300 tons of new steel rails. For the seven months ending April 30, 1881, the net receipts of the company exceeded $240,000, which is equal to 64 per cent, on the capital stock of the company, after the payment of interest, rents, and all other fixed charges, and expending a large amount for equipment, steel rails, and additional work-shops.

I see a great deal written about this genseems to know much, but all agree that he was born in the north of Ireland and claimed all his life to be a British subject. I have heard a different story, though I do not wouch for it. In my boyhood I spent and had stopped to water his horse at a little runlet or brook, he found an infant boy carefully wrapped up, asleep on a bed of rushes. Quite startled at the sight, after riding around and ballooing half an hour for the owners of the child-night approaching and wolves being numerous in the forest-he took the child and carried it to his house, where he placed it under the care of his favorite attendants, John and wife, The parents never turned up, and in due time the boy was named John Burnsidea name suggested by the locality where he was found, by the side of a burn or brook-a word common in Scotland and in the north of Ireland. I often saw this young man in the several mercantile estabishments of Andrew Bierne, in West Virginia, where he seemed to be a sort of supervising clerk or agent, visiting the several stores alternately; and I never heard and association they were blind to its essen
